

MOTION, ACTIVITY AND TIME IN NEOPLATONISM

organized by the Institute of Philosophy (Eötvös Loránd University, Faculty of Humanities) and the Moravcsik Gyula Institute (Research Centre for the Humanities).

11 November, 2022.

Venue: Eötvös Loránd University, Faculty of Humanities, Institute of Philosophy
(1088 Budapest, Múzeum krt. 4/i, 1st floor, room 123).

Program

- 10.00-11.20 Eyjólfur Kjalar Emilsson (University of Oslo): Motion and activity in Plotinus
11.25-12.45 László Bene (Eötvös Loránd University): Time as the measure of motion:
Plotinus' treatment of an Aristotelian idea in Ennead VI.1-3 [42-44] and in Ennead III.7
[45]
12.45–14.00 Lunch break
14.00-15.20 Thomas Seissl (University of Vienna): Simplicius and Philoponus on elemental motion (on Arist. Phys. 8.4) 15.25-16.45 Ágoston Guba (Moravcsik Gyula Institute): Soul and celestial motion in Plotinus
17.00-18.20: George Karamanolis (University of Vienna): Simplicius on the Timaeus:
Explaining Plato in an Aristotelian commentary (In de Caelo)

If you intend to participate, please contact the organizers:

László Bene (bene.laszlo@btk.elte.hu)

or

Ágoston Guba (guba.agoston@abtk.hu)

